BASIC ELIGIBILITY. PFL benefits can be paid only after you meet all of the following requirements:

- You must be unable to do your regular or customary work due to the need to provide care or to bond with a new child.
- You must be employed or actively looking for work at the time your family leave begins.
- If working, you must have lost wages because you were caring for a seriously ill family member or bonding with a new child.
- You must have earned at least $300 from which State Disability Insurance (SDI) deductions were withheld during a previous period. (See "YOUR BENEFIT AMOUNTS" in the next column.)
- You must complete and mail a claim form within 41 days after the first day your family leave begins or you may lose benefits.

In addition, the following requirements must be met only if your PFL claim is to care for a seriously ill family member:

- The care recipient must be your child, parent, spouse, registered domestic partner, grandparent, grandchild, sibling, or parent-in-law.
- The care recipient must be under the continuing treatment or supervision of a licensed physician/practitioner or accredited religious practitioner while you are receiving benefits.
- The care recipient's physician/practitioner must complete the certificatio that he/she requires care. If the care recipient is under the care of a religious practitioner, request
  a Practitioner's Certification for Paid Family Leave (PFL) Benefits, DE 2502F, from the PFL office. Certification by a religious practitioner is acceptable only if the practitioner has been accredited by the EDD.

The following requirements must also be met only if your PFL claim is to bond with a new child:

- Your leave must take place within 12 months of the birth, adoption, or foster care placement of the child.
- The new child must be either your or your registered domestic partner's biological child, adopted child, or foster child.

INELIGIBILITY. You may apply for benefits even if you are not sure you are eligible. If you are found to be ineligible for all or part of a period claimed, you will be notified of the ineligible period and the reason. You may not be eligible for PFL benefits if:

- You are claiming or receiving Unemployment Insurance (UI) or Disability Insurance (DI) benefits.
- You are receiving workers' compensation benefits at a weekly rate equal to or greater than the PFL rate.
- You are in jail, prison, or any other facility.

FRAUD. Under sections 1143, 2101, 2116, 2122, and 3305 of the California Unemployment Insurance Code, it is a violation to willfully make a false statement or knowingly conceal a material fact in order to obtain the payment of any benefits. Such violation is punishable by imprisonment, and/or by a fine not exceeding $20,000, or both. To detect and discourage fraud, the EDD continually monitors claims, vigorously investigates suspicious activity, and will seek restitution and conviction through prosecution.

YOUR RESPONSIBILITIES

- File your claim and other forms completely, accurately, and in a timely manner. If a form is late, include with the form a written explanation of the reason(s).
- Carefully read the instructions on this and all other forms you receive from PFL. If you are not sure what is required, contact the PFL office.
- Call or report in writing to the PFL office any:
  - Change of address or telephone number.
  - o Return to part-time or full-time work.
  - o Need for care or bonding to stop.
  - o Income you receive.
- Include your name and Social Security number on all correspondence.

YOUR RIGHTS. Information about your claim will be kept confidential, except for the purposes allowed by law. California Civil Code, Section 1798.34, gives you the right to inspect any personal records maintained about you by the EDD. Section 1798.35 permits you to request that the record be corrected if you believe it is not accurate, relevant, timely, or complete. Certain types of information that would generally be considered personal are exempt from disclosure to you: medical or psychological records where knowledge of the contents might be harmful to the subject (Civil Code, Section 1798.40); records of active criminal, civil, or administrative investigations (Civil Code, Section 1798.40). Additionally, the EDD will not disclose or provide copies of care recipients' medical information to care providers. If you are denied access to records which you believe you have a right to inspect or if your request to amend your records is refused, you may file an appeal with the PFL office. You may request a copy of your file by calling the telephone number shown on your Notice of Computation, DE 429D.

You also have the right to appeal any disqualification, overpayment, or penalty. Specific instructions on how to appeal will be provided on any appealable document you receive.

YOUR BENEFIT AMOUNTS. Your claim begins on the date your family leave began. The EDD calculates your weekly benefit amount using your base period. The date your family leave began determines your base period. You may not change the beginning date of your claim or adjust your base period after you have established a valid claim.

This base period covers 12 months and is divided into four consecutive quarters. Your base period includes wages subject to SDI tax that you were paid approximately 5 to 18 months before your PFL claim begins. Your base period does not include wages being paid at the time family leave begins. For a PFL claim to be valid, you must have earned at least $300 in wages in the base period. Using the following, you may determine the base period.

- If your claim begins in January, February, or March, your base period is the 12 months ending last September 30.
- If your claim begins in April, May, or June, your base period is the 12 months ending last December 31.
- If your claim begins in July, August, or September, your base period is the 12 months ending last March 31.
- If your claim begins in October, November, or December, your base period is the 12 months ending last June 30.

The quarter of your base period in which you were paid the highest wages determines your weekly benefit amoun .

 Your daily benefit amoun is your weekly benefit amount divided by seven. Your maximum benefit amoun is six times your weekly benefit amount or the total wages subject to SDI tax paid in your base period, whichever is less.

Contact the PFL office to inquire about benefits and to provide additional information if your situation fits any of these circumstances:

- If you do not have sufficient base period wages, you may be able to establish a valid claim by using a later beginning date.
- If you do not have enough base period wages and you were actively seeking work for 60 days or more in any quarter of the base period, you may be able to substitute wages paid in prior quarters.
- If during your base period you served in the military, received workers' compensation benefits, or did not work because of a labor dispute.

HOW BENEFITS ARE PAID. When your claim is received, the PFL office will notify you of your weekly benefit amount and request any additional information needed to determine your eligibility. If you meet all requirements, a payment will be issued to you using the EDD Debit Card<sup>SM</sup>, which will be mailed to you. The majority of claims are processed and payments issued within 14 days of receipt of a correctly completed claim.

If you are eligible for further benefits, additional payments will be issued automatically. You will be paid 1/7 of your weekly benefit amount for each calendar day you are eligible unless benefits are reduced for some reason. (See "BENEFIT REDUCTIONS" below.)

BENEFIT REDUCTIONS. Under certain circumstances, you may not be eligible for a period of your claim or you may be entitled only to partial benefits. The EDD will determine whether or not benefits must be reduced. The types of income shown in the following list should be reported to the EDD even though they may not always affect your benefits. Failure to report your income could result in an overpayment, penalties, and/or a false statement disqualification.

- Sick leave pay
- · Vacation pay
- Self-employment income
- Military pay
- Commissions
- Wages, including modified duty wages
- Residuals
- Bonuses
- Workers' compensation benefits
- Holiday pay
- Paid time off
- · Part-time work income

In addition, your benefits may be reduced because of a prior UI, DI, or PFL overpayment or for delinquent court-ordered child or spousal support payments.

BENEFIT INTERRUPTION and TERMINATION. You will see "Notice of Exhaustion of Paid Family Leave Benefits" on the Electronic Benefit Payment (EBP) Notification, DE 2500E, when:

- You have been paid to the date the care recipient no longer requires care, as estimated by the care recipient's physician/practitioner. If the care recipient still requires care, complete and sign the PFL Claimant's Certification portion and ask the care recipient's physician/practitioner to complete and mail the Physician/Practitioner's Supplementary Certificate, DE 2525XFA.
- The care recipient has recovered. If you return to work and the care recipient again requires care, immediately submit a new claim form and report the dates you worked.

A Notice of Exhaustion of Paid Family Leave Benefits, DE 2525AF, will be issued when records show you have been paid the maximum amount of PFL benefits (up to 6 weeks in a 12-month period).

TAXABILITY of BENEFITS. PFL benefits are subject to federal income taxes and will be reported to the Internal Revenue Service. Each person receiving PFL benefits will receive a 1099G form to include with his/her federal income tax return. PFL benefits are not subject to California income taxes. For 1099G inquiries, please call 1-800-795-0193.

OVERPAYMENT. An overpayment results when you receive PFL benefit payments you were not eligible to receive. Once the EDD determines that you were overpaid, the PFL office will contact you to explain the reason for your overpayment. It is important that you complete and return all information requests, as there are some instances when an overpayment can be waived. If it is determined that you were overpaid and the overpayment cannot be waived, you must repay this money. Payments issued after an overpayment is established may be reduced by 25 to 100 percent to collect your overpayment. You will receive a Notice of Overpayment Offset, DE 826, if your weekly benefit amount is reduced due to a DI, PFL, or UI overpayment.

DISQUALIFICATION. All available information will be considered before issuing a benefit payment or disqualifying your claim. Benefits will be paid only for the days to which you are eligible. If payment of benefits is denied or reduced, you will receive a written notice stating the reason for the disqualification.

If you deliberately report incorrect information or if you willfully omit or withhold information, false statement disqualifications of up to 92 days will be assessed. This may apply if you receive a payment that you know includes days for which you should not be paid, such as days after you returned to work. In addition, any resulting overpayment will be increased by a 30 percent penalty assessment.

I further understand that disclosure of my personal-health information may include my AIDS/HIV status, drug or alcohol addiction, or any other physical or mental condition.

I understand that EDD may disclose this information as authorized by the California Unemployment Insurance Code and that such re-disclosed information may no longer be protected. I understand that I have the right to receive a copy of an authorization form from EDD if I request one in writing.

I make this authorization to support my care provider's claim for Paid Family Leave benefits. I understand that I may not revoke my authorization to avoid prosecution or to prevent EDD's recovery of monies to which it is legally entitled.
