The Migrant Seasonal Farmworker (MSFW) outreach program delivers workforce development services, labor-law protection, Unemployment and State Disability benefits, and career guidance to all farmworkers.

The Employment Development Department’s (EDD) MSFW outreach program collaborates with community organizations and other state agencies to ensure that all job seekers receive equal and timely services.

EDD’s outreach workers visit communities throughout the state to collaborate with local employers in the agricultural industry and farmworkers in the community who are not being reached by normal means.

These outreach workers may contact workers in their place of employment, in their homes, or in other locations to provide information in employment resources, worker rights, job referrals, and supportive services available through the EDD and its partners.
